

REVIEWER'S REPORT

Manuscript No.: IJAR-50569

Date: 08-03-2025

Title: The Employment Aspect Of Tourism Sector In India And Its Long Run Dynamics: An Econometric Analysis

Recommendation:

Accept as it is

Accept after minor revision YES

Accept after major revision

Do not accept (Reasons below)

Rating	Excel.	Good	Fair	Poor
Originality				Poor
Techn. Quality			Fair
Clarity			Fair
Significance				Poor

Reviewer Name: Dr. Tripti

Date: 08-03-2025

Reviewer's Comment for Publication.

(To be published with the manuscript in the journal)

The paper offers valuable insights into tourism's role in India's employment sector but could benefit from a clearer explanation of the econometric models used. A more detailed breakdown of direct and indirect employment impacts and a comparison with other countries would enhance the analysis. Additionally, exploring policy implications for sustainable employment growth would strengthen the paper. Finally, recommendations for improving data collection and modeling techniques would add practicality.

Detailed Reviewer's Report

International Journal of Advanced Research

Publisher's Name: Jana Publication and Research LLP

www.journalijar.com

REVIEWER'S REPORT

The paper titled "The Employment Aspect of the Tourism Sector in India and Its Long-Run Dynamics: An Econometric Analysis" presents an interesting approach to understanding the role of tourism in India's employment sector. The analysis is well-structured, highlighting the significance of tourism in generating jobs. However, the paper could benefit from a clearer introduction to the specific econometric models used and why they were chosen for this study. More detailed data on tourism's direct versus indirect employment impact could strengthen the argument. The long-run dynamics section would be more insightful if it explored policy implications for sustainable employment growth in tourism. The paper would also benefit from a comparison with other countries' tourism employment trends to provide a broader perspective. Lastly, including recommendations for improving data collection or modeling techniques would make the study more actionable for policymakers.