Detailed Reviewer's Report

Below are my comments:

1. The article has no abstract. This is not satisfactory. A study of this nature should have an abstract that provides a synopsis of the study. I suggest the authors to provide an abstract for the study.
2. The study lacks a theoretical framework. A study of this nature should be anchored around the stricture of a relevant theory for theoretical orientation and depth. I suggest the author/s provide a theoretical framework for the study.
3. The study lacks methodology. The author/s should provide a comprehensive methodological orientation for the study. The author/s should comprehensive account on how data for the study was collected; whether the study relied on secondary data; what sampling method was used in the study, and why the choice of methods for data collection, sampling and analysis.
4. Author/s should check across the manuscript for grammatical errors, spelling errors and punctuation errors.
5. The pages of the manuscript are not numbered. This makes reading the manuscript a bit difficult. The author/s need to consider inserting page numbers.
6. The authors should review and align the document with the journal's author guidelines, ensuring proper formatting, page numbering, and citation style (references/bibliography).
