Reviewer's Comment for Publication.

The manuscript titled “The Prophet's Treatment of Non-Muslims Considering the Sunnah of the Prophet SAW” presents a focused exploration of the Prophet Muhammad's ﷺ conduct in his interactions with non-Muslims, emphasizing the values of mercy, justice, and coexistence.

The abstract is clear in scope and objectives. It situates the research within the framework of the Prophetic Sunnah and aims to highlight the Prophet's ﷺ dealings with non-Muslims, including dhimmis, treaty partners, and combatants. The research adopts an analytical deductive approach, relying on authentic sources such as hadiths, the Prophet's biography, and historical narratives. The abstract also outlines the dual objectives of correcting misconceptions about Islam and promoting peaceful coexistence between religions. This framing underscores both the academic and social significance of the study.

The research background appropriately situates the study in a devotional and historical context. It praises the Prophet ﷺ as the supreme example of moral conduct and highlights his role as a model of justice, tolerance, and compassion. The discussion of his interactions with different categories of non-Muslims — allies, covenantal communities, and even opponents — emphasizes his exemplary behavior. The narrative reflects how his moral and ethical dealings gained acknowledgment even from adversaries, thereby reinforcing the authenticity of his noble character.

The manuscript underscores the contemporary relevance of the topic, linking the Prophetic model to present-day needs for peaceful coexistence and mutual understanding amidst intellectual and cultural conflicts. By drawing upon the Prophetic Sunnah, the study provides a religiously grounded framework for dialogue, coexistence, and the correction of common misconceptions regarding Islam's stance towards non-Muslims.

Overall, the work demonstrates scholarly depth, thematic clarity, and strong contextual grounding, making it a meaningful contribution to both Islamic studies and interfaith discourse.
