Kampillaka Taila is an Ayurvedic medicated oil primarily used for treating skin conditions, wounds and infections. The oils main ingredients is the fruit hair and glands of the Kampillaka plant.

Detailed Reviewer's Report

- A leprotic ulcer is a chronic, non healing skin wound that develops as a severe complication of leprosy, also known as Hansens disease. These neuropathic ulcers occur primarily on the feet and hands due to the irreversible nerve damage caused by Mycobacterium leprae, the bacteria responsible for leprosy.

REVIEWER'S REPORT

- 2. After debridement the removal of dead or infected tissue wound healing restarts and follows the body's natural stages of recovery. The wound transitions from being stagnant or infected to a clean, healthy state that can support new tissue growth.
- 3. Integrative wound care is a holistic approach that focuses on the whole patient not just the injury to support and accelerate the healing process.
- 4. A holistic approach is a method that treats a person by considering their entire self – physical, mental, emotional, social and spiritual aspects rather than just focusing on symptoms or a single issue.
- 5. This research findings are herbal oriented with good value in future.
- 6. Key words, pictures, graphs and flow charts of all informations are given good with informative.
- 7. Summary points can be added
- 8. References should be in alphabetical order.
- 9. After small corrections good to publish in your journal.
