Detailed Reviewer's Report

- 1. Ground water is fresh water from rain or snowmelt that soaks into the ground filling spaces between soil, sand and rocks in underground layers called aquifers, acting like a huge underground sponge.
- 2. Physicochemical parameters are measurable properties that describe the physical and chemical characteristics of a substance or system. These parameters include temperature, PH and conductivity as well as others like dissolved oxygen, turbidity and total suspended solids.
- 3. Bacteriology is the branch of microbiology that studies bacteria, focusing on their characteristics, behavior, genetics, and roles in health, diseases, industry and the environment from beneficial microbes in fermentation and nutrient cycling to pathogenic strains causing infections.
- 4. A borehole is a narrow shaft drilled into the ground for various purposes, including extracting water, oil or gas geotechnical investigation for construction, mineral exploration or installing geothermal systems often using modern rigs for deeper, narrower access than traditional wells.

REVIEWER'S REPORT

5. These deep holes provide crucial subsurface data, allowing scientists and engineers to study geology, monitor contamination, and access groundwater, often by inserting casing to prevent collapse and collecting fluid samples.
6. Key words are good to understand research paper.
7. Tables can be given for results. But graphs with pictures are awesome.
8. Summary points can be included.
9. References should be in alphabetical order.
10. After a small corrections good to publish in your journal.
