Detailed Reviewer's Report

The manuscript presents a clear, well-structured, and timely study on the application of Artificial Intelligence for behavioural analysis of human interactions in online communities. The topic is highly relevant, and the paper demonstrates adequate theoretical grounding, systematic presentation of literature, and a coherent methodological framework supported by illustrative figures and tables. The proposed framework is logical and practically applicable, and the data analysis effectively supports the stated objectives. The conclusions are well-aligned with the findings and highlight meaningful academic and practical implications. Overall, the manuscript meets the scholarly standards of the journal in terms of originality, clarity, and contribution to the field; therefore, it is accepted for publication without revision.
