Detailed Reviewer's Report

The manuscript titled "A Study on Socio-Economic Status between Intercollegiate Men's and Women's Football Players" presents a clear and focused empirical investigation into an important and relevant issue in sports sociology. The objectives and hypothesis are well defined, and the study employs an appropriate research design, sampling technique, and a standardized instrument to measure socio-economic status. The statistical analysis using an independent sample t-test is suitable, and the results are clearly presented and logically interpreted with respect to each dimension of socio-economic status. The discussion and conclusion are consistent with the findings and appropriately acknowledge the limitations of the study, including sample size and generalizability. The manuscript is well organized and supported by relevant literature. Overall, the study makes a meaningful contribution to the existing body of knowledge, and the paper is accepted for publication.
