Detailed Reviewer's Report

1. Access cesarean section" is not a standard medical term; the term refers to the surgical procedure itself (a C-section) and the techniques used by surgeons to gain access to the uterus and baby. The phrase implies the surgical approach or the availability of the procedure, rather than a unique type of C-section.
2. Main geographical factors are the physical and human elements of a location that influence societies, economies, and environments, including climate, landforms (topography), natural resources, location (position, access to markets), hydrology (water bodies), and human systems like infrastructure and population distribution, all shaping how people live, develop, and interact with their surroundings.
3. Togo, officially the Togolese Republic, is a narrow country in West Africa known for its diverse geography, rich culture, and history as a former German and French colony, with its capital Lomé on the Gulf of Guinea.
4. It's a small nation, bordered by Ghana, Burkina Faso, and Benin, recognized for its palm-fringed beaches, savanna plains, and Togo

Mountains, serving as a significant hub for voodoo culture and traditional markets alongside its agricultural economy.

5. "Blitta Health" likely refers to healthcare initiatives and systems in the Blitta region of Togo, focusing on community health, access, and mutual insurance, rather than a single company, though a US company named Flyte health offers virtual cardiometabolic care and might be confused with the name.
6. In Blitta, efforts include building health centers, providing water, distributing malaria nets, and supporting local mutual health insurance schemes to improve care for residents, as highlighted by organizations like Louvain Coopération and GlobalGiving.
7. Key words need more to understand topic.
8. Result part is awesome with pictures.
9. Abstract part can be given little more clearly.
10. Summary points should be added.
11. References should be in alphabetical order.
